ROOTED CUTTING

5 TO 6-INCH PLANT

BOXWOOD, grown in our loose mountain loam, has heavy mats of fibrous roots, and the climate and elevation give it a heavy, compact, rich green foliage and a hardiness that enables it to stand northern climates to the limit of its growing range. Our large stock enables us to select uniform plants in any size.

This business was established at Elliston, Va., in 1926 for growing Boxwood, and buying and selling large collected Boxwood. It is now a complete nursery with sales ground, office and greenhouses 2½ miles west of Roanoke on Lee Highway (U. S. 11). 75 acres and sales ground at Elliston, Va., 170 acres in Bent Mountain section south of Roanoke and leased land in Floyd County for growing spruce and hemlock.

In these nurseries there is every type of soil, and we are growing, each in the soil best suited to it, thousands of evergreens, shrubs and trees in hundreds of varieties, thus we are able to supply the highest grade of guaranteed, State-inspected nursery stock, freshly dug at prices as low, and often lower than inferior stock trucked in and sold by dealers and peddlers.

This firm has no connection with or interest in any other nursery, and no other firm or person has any interest in these nurseries.

BOXWOOD GROWING IN OUR MOUNTAIN NURSERY—FROM WHICH GREEN PLANTS CAN BE SHIPPED AT ALL TIMES

Large Specimen Boxwood

We have one of the largest and finest collections of Large Specimen Boxwood in the United States. During the past ten years we have been collecting, planting, selling and studying these interesting plants, and perfecting our knowledge of their culture and the best methods of handling. During this time we have shipped thousands of fine plants without, so far as we know, the loss of a single plant, and with voluntary expressions of appreciation from many of the leading Landscape Architects and Nurseries for the quality of plants shipped and our methods of handling. Our collection includes every size of both Buxus suffruticosa and sempervirens from 2 ft. to 13 ft., and of every type from the round, formal shown above, to the rugged, hilly, informal type, as seen on the address side of this folder.

Our prices are surprisingly moderate and, on request, we will send detailed description, photographs and prices on any types and sizes.
